urine sediment examination. This is the final stage of a complete urinalysis. It can confirm suspected findings from earlier stages of the analysis as well as facilitate visual inspection of structures in the sample e.g. casts, cells or crystals. Before examining the sediment the urine must be centrifuged or "spun down" to concentrate the sample. This process will separate the sample into two parts: the supernatant and the sediment.

Adding a urine sediment stain to the sample may improve nuclear detail and facilitate identification of cells. 2 Stains, however, dilute the sample and affect semi-quantitative evaluation of the results. 1,3 Stains may also add bacteria, fungal elements, and other debris to the sample. Examining both stained and unstained preparations is recommended.

Spin the sample - take 5 mls of urine and spin at 1500 rpm for 2 minutes to form a sediment. Remove the supernatant - this is usually pipetted off, leaving approximately 0.5 ml of a sediment pellet. Resuspend the sediment - this is done by holding the tube at the top and flicking the bottom a couple of times.
